Instructions

These Cursive Reading Practice Sentences are taken from Dr. Samuel L. Blumenfeld's Alpha-Phonics: A Primer for Beginning Readers (2005).

First Step - Writing: The teacher is to teach all the words and sentences in a Lesson from the chalkboard as cursive handwriting lessons. The students are not expected to read words or sentences they have not been taught in the class. They will have written in cursive every word and sentence on handwriting paper before being asked to read the cursive reading practice sentences. I recommend that the students say the letter names as they write the letters.

Second Step - Reading: The students can begin reading these practice sentences after they have written them in good cursive on handwriting paper. The students should read each Lesson as many times as it takes for them to learn to read it without hesitation, using tally marks to keep track of the times each Lesson is read. Guessing from the context is to be discouraged at all times. This repetition is to build up their cursive word identification automaticity (fluency and speed with comprehension).

Fourth Step - Writing Again: The sentences should be used for dictation practice. The goal of the program is Total Linguistic Function with reading, cursive handwriting, and spelling all having an equal value. The student should be able to write the sentences from dictation as well as they can read them.

Donald L. Potter prepared this document. More information on cursive-first and intensive phonics can be found at www.donpotter.net.
